R. Couri Hay • Creative Public Relations
143 West 81st Street • New York City 10024
Tel: 212-580-0835 • e-mail: rcourihay@aol.com

July 23-29, 2010

END NOTES COURI

Darren Wan, Jay Norris, Cindy Guyer and Frank Cilone

Darren Bush, Monique Breaux and Janna Bullock

Gone Fishing

She reeled him in. Unfortunately, it was catch and release. BY R. COURI HAY

THIS GIRL CAME out of nowhere. She wasn't the prettiest or the wittiest in her class, but she was ambitious. Ever since she started leafing through magazines, she was hooked on being rich and famous. By the time she got to NYC, she was ready to land a big fish, and by being in the right place, in the right dress, at the right time, she got one. Let's call her "A."

When this talented guy stood on top of all his money, some thought he was tall, dark and handsome. When he was at his peak, he was a player; unfortunately, he was also married. His first divorce was messy, and then he partied too much. When he met "A," he was finally ready to settle down. Let's call him "B."

Kyle MacLachlan and Jill Zarin

"A" married "B," but it wasn't for love or lust, it was for access and power. "A" built herself a new life on "B"'s millions. When he realized she was more interested in sashaying down the red carpet than staying at home with him, it was too late. She began having an affair. "B" didn't want to be embarrassed, so he agreed to a divorce. "A" has been spotted on our shores shopping... for love. Time will tell what "B"'s money will buy her next.